As Slayer of Wife susplcious, but all of them can be explained and they will. But I got sick and tired of the never ending questioning "why did you do this?" and "Why did you do that?" and I determined to go away. I wanted to get rid of everything because I was convinced that sooner or later I would be arrested on some kind of a charge. Dr. Wilkins Indicted

Keene Wilkins, of Long Beach, charged of the Peace Cassius M. Coleman.

serted his innocence to-day, as he was interrogated by District Attorney Charles R. Weeks and the detectives. Since he was taken into custody on Wednesday night in the Pennsylvania Station in Manhattan, Dr. Wilkins has been subjected to an almost continual examination. The inquisitors sought by every means to draw from him a new story of what happened on the night when his wife's head was crushed by the blows of a hammer.

The authorities are now working on the theory that before Mrs. Wilkins stepped to her doom from the porch of her home she removed her hat in her own room. Detectives who examined the crushed purple hat the woman wore declare that the hat pins were crossed as they would have been by the slain woman if she had removed her hat if she wore the hat when she was struck down by the hammer it would show some marks of the assault. There are none.

Former District Attorney Charles N. Wysong of Port Washington, has been retained to defend Dr. Wilkins, He will appear for him to-morrow when he pleads to the murder indictment. It is expected that the physician will be brought to trial some time in May. District Attorney Weeks announced that he would be ready to proceed then.

The decetor looked up and with a forced smile took the hand of his attorney, who was his almost constant companion after the murder, and replied:

"You caused me a lot of trouble by not showing up last night."

"I went to Baltimore on Sunday morning, after having received this telephone message: from my attorney. Mr. Friess. He told me to meet him and to go with him to the home of District Attorney Weeks. Friess seemed very much agitated and nervous and his agitation gave me reason to believe that something serious would happen.

"Friess had told me that certain evidence had been found that pointed to me, and when I had thought this over I decided to go to my daughter in Washington.

"While on the train I thought the matter over and decided not to bring my troubles to my daughter, who is very nicely married. I stayed in Baltimore and yeaterdny, when I saw my picture in the papers and knew that diff, Weeks wanted me, I telegraphed him that I was ready to place myself in his hands."

May Have Hidden Here

The doctor declined to tell the officials where he had stopped in Baltimore, which strengthened the theory among some detectives on the case that he had been hidden in New York. He stated in answer to questions that he had shaved off his whiskers because he did not want to be arrested before he gave himself up to Mr. Weeks. The foctor would not go into detail regarding the removal of his whiskers, but it was noticed that several long gray hairs were still on his face. This made the detectives think he had shaved himself.

When the prisoner was brought back to his own home he was asked by the detectives about the suit he wore. He said that it was the same one he had on three weeks ago when his wife was murdered. When informed that Mr. Weeks wanted the suit to examine he protested that it was the only good suit he had. He brought an old suit with him to the jail. Then the operatives asked him concerning the torn overcoat.

"Wasn't the man who tore this coat a long of Purgatory said Filippa Gambino, the fourteen year-old slayer of Tomasso Trois, when she appeared in court yesterday to be arraigned on the charge of murder in the first degree.

At the request of Cæsar Barra, attorney for the girl, a postponement of one week was taken before pleading, in order that Mr. Barra may have an opportunity to inspect the grand jury minutes and prepare such motions as he may desire to make. It is quite probable that an agreement will be sought whereby the indictment will be considered.
